

This is Josephi. He is a relatively forgetful college student. Because he, and most of his fellow students are idiots, his school is going to implement a new feature to all buildings and food court areas.

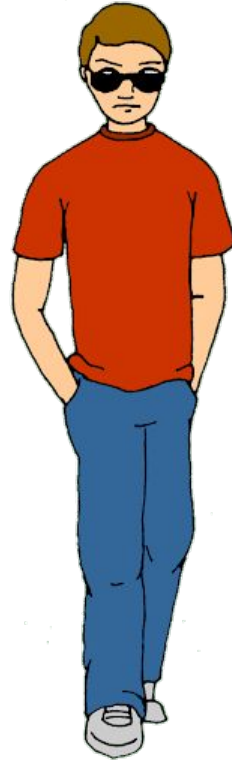

Because of the recent pandemic and a lack of competent students, a facial recognition system is being implemented to help students daily life.

Now, anytime Josephi goes to get food, all he has to do is bring his face. This allows him to easily access both his dorm, and any other building on campus he may need to get into.

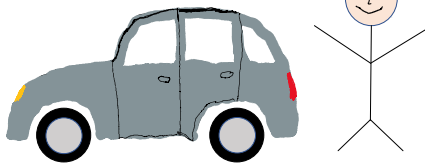

This new system also prevents skety folk from entering the building. Since everyone would have their face scanned, people would know exactly who let who into the building.

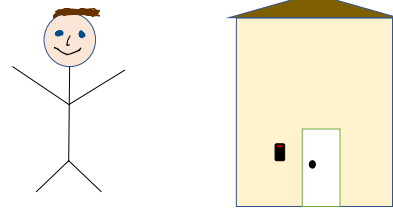

Now that Josephi only needs to have his face, he can continue failing his classes even easier now!

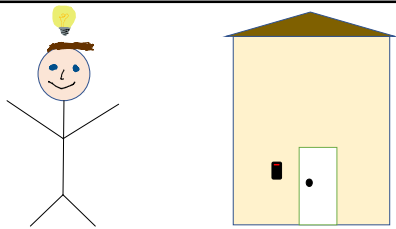

Of course this new facial recognition makes it even easier for everyone, not just Josephi.

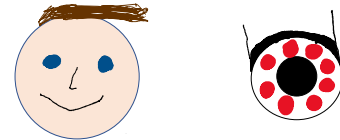

Professor Owen arrives at UofSC in the morning as he does every day

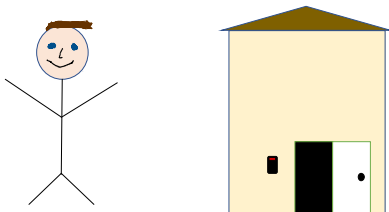

As he gets to the building his office is in, he realizes he has forgotten his Carolina card at home, something he's done multiple times before.

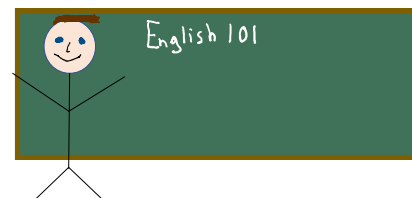

As he gets ready to go home to get his Carolina Card, he remember something

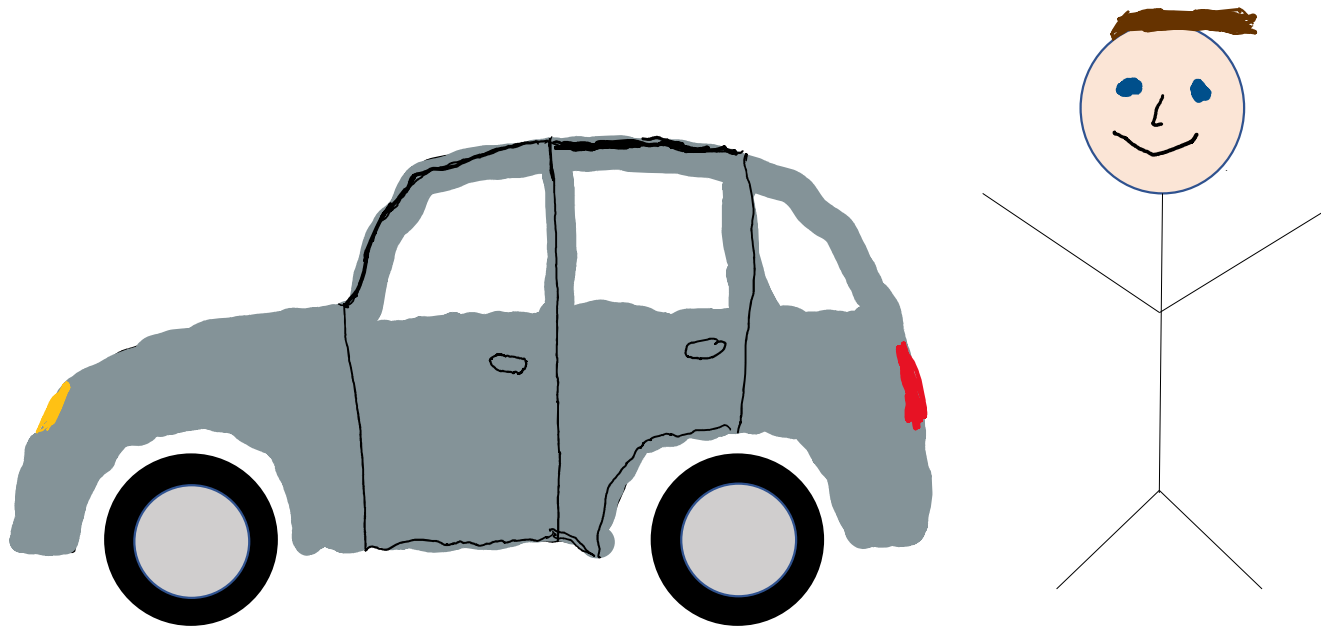

UofSC has just put in a new facial recognition service that means he won't need his Carolina Card

Professor Owen walks up to his building and is quickly let in by a simple, efficient, and easy to use system.

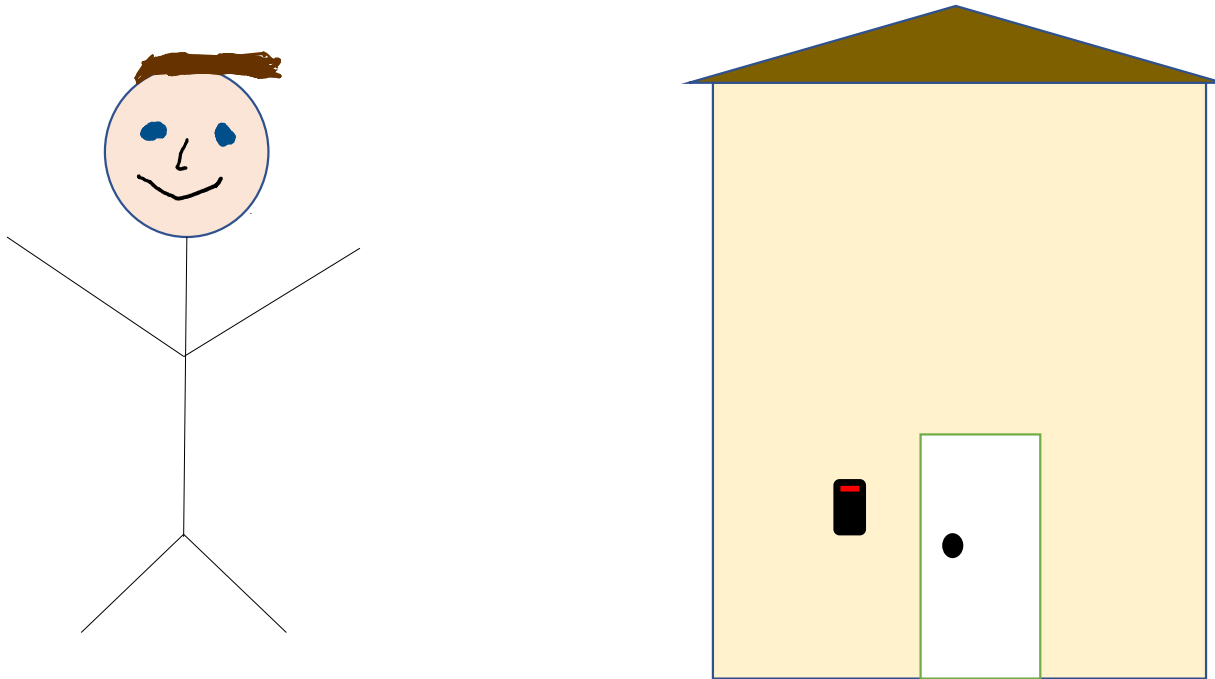

Professor Owen goes about his day without any issue because of forgetting his Carolina Card

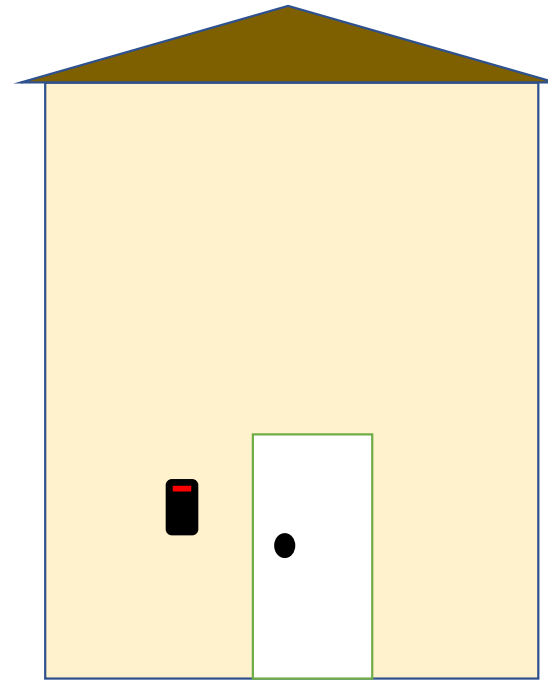

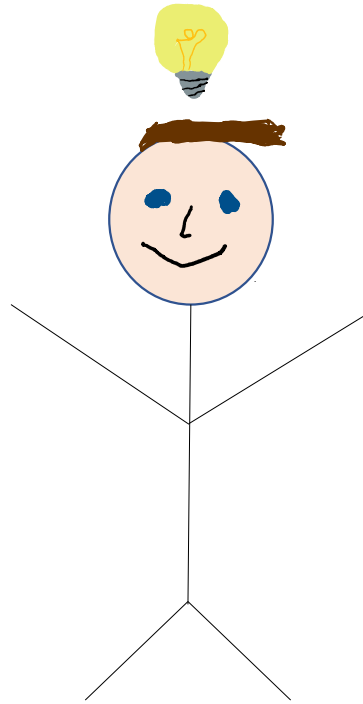

Professor Owen arrives at UofSC in the morning as he does every day

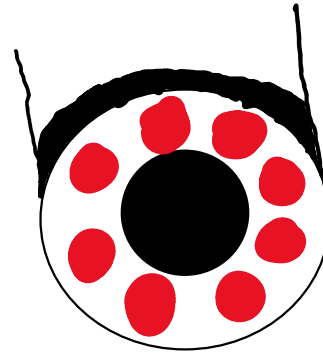

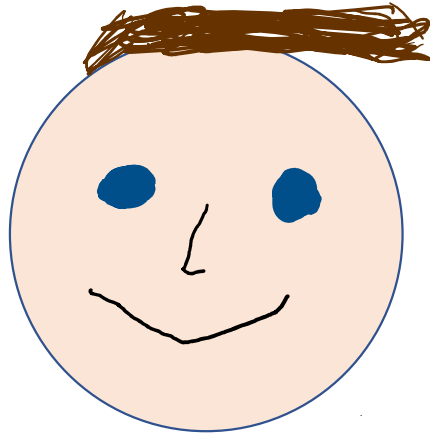

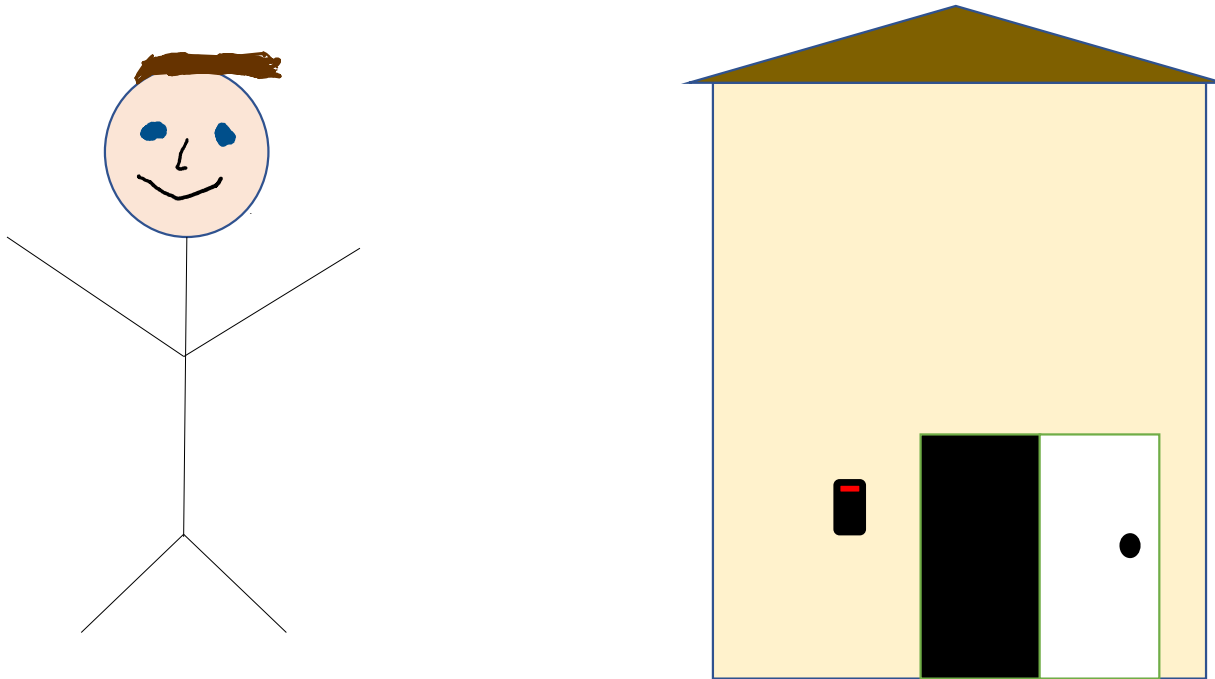

As he gets to the building his office is in, he realizes he has forgotten his Carolina card at home, something he's done multiple times before.

As he gets ready to go home to get his Carolina Card, he remember something

UofSC has just put in a new facial recognition service that means he won't need his Carolina Card

Professor Owen walks up to his building and is quickly let in by a simple, efficient, and easy to use system.

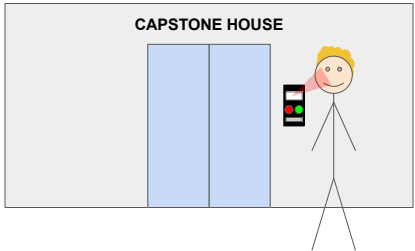

Professor Owen goes about his day without any issue because of forgetting his Carolina Card

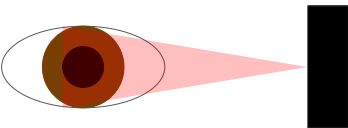

Tim is always forgetting things. He tends to forget his college campus keycard almost everyday. Sometimes he would even get locked out of his dorm building!

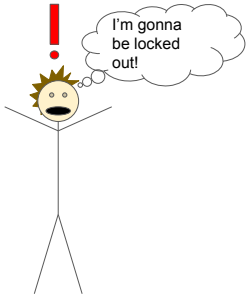

However, his college campus has just finished installing some new security features - including facial, voice, and fingerprint recognition.

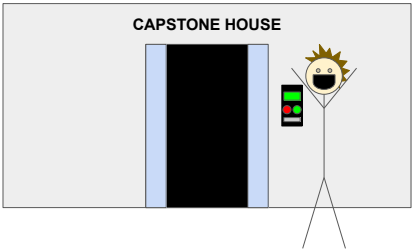

Now at the entrance of Tim's dorm, there is an iris scanner that quickly scans the eye.

The iris scanner detects the person's identity and grants them access if they are a student or staff member.

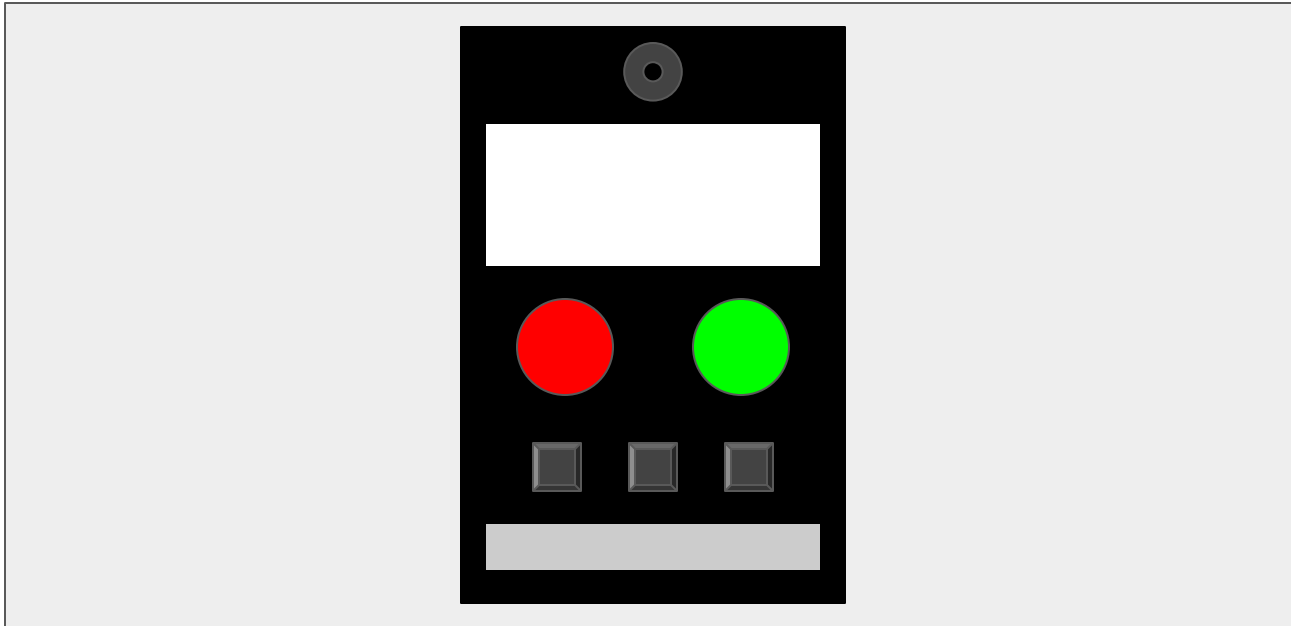

Tim just finished his long day of school, and realizes he forgot his keycard....again!

However, the new security features don't require a keycard. Tim scans his eyes and the door unlocks. Now Tim doesn't have to wait for someone else to open the door!

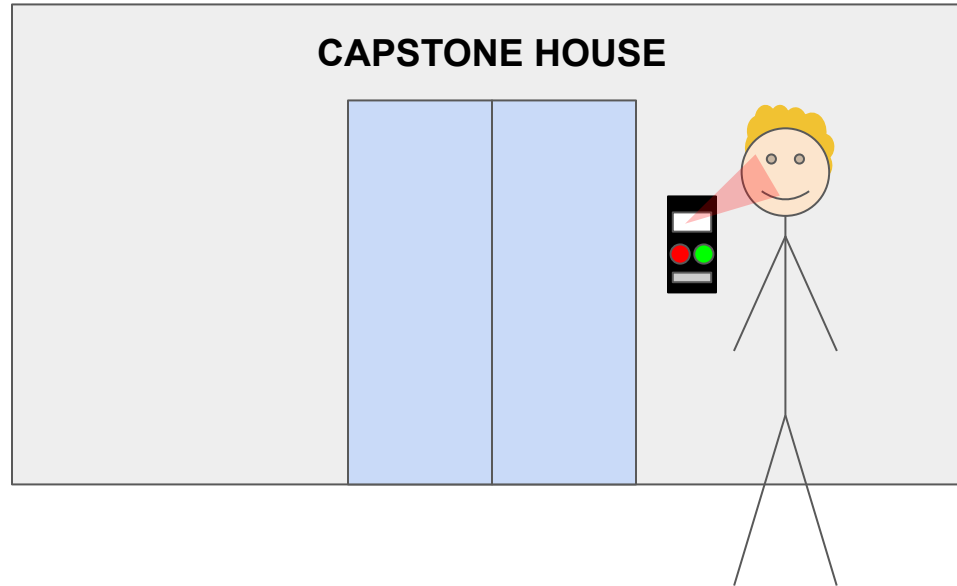

Tim is always forgetting things. He tends to forget his college campus keycard almost everyday. Sometimes he would even get locked out of his dorm building!

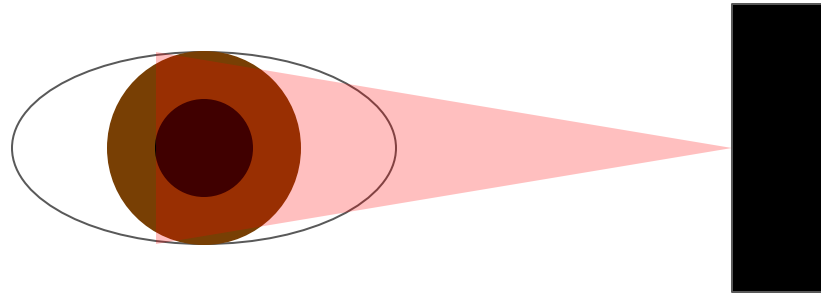

However, his college campus has just finished installing some new security features - including facial, voice, and fingerprint recognition.

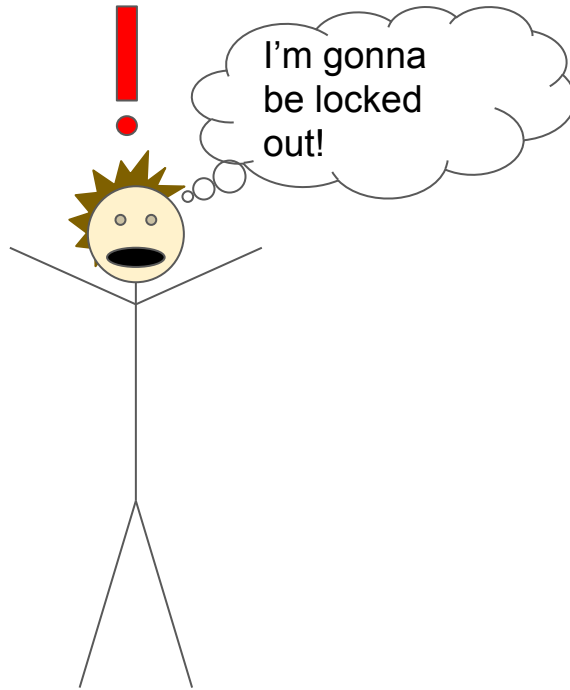

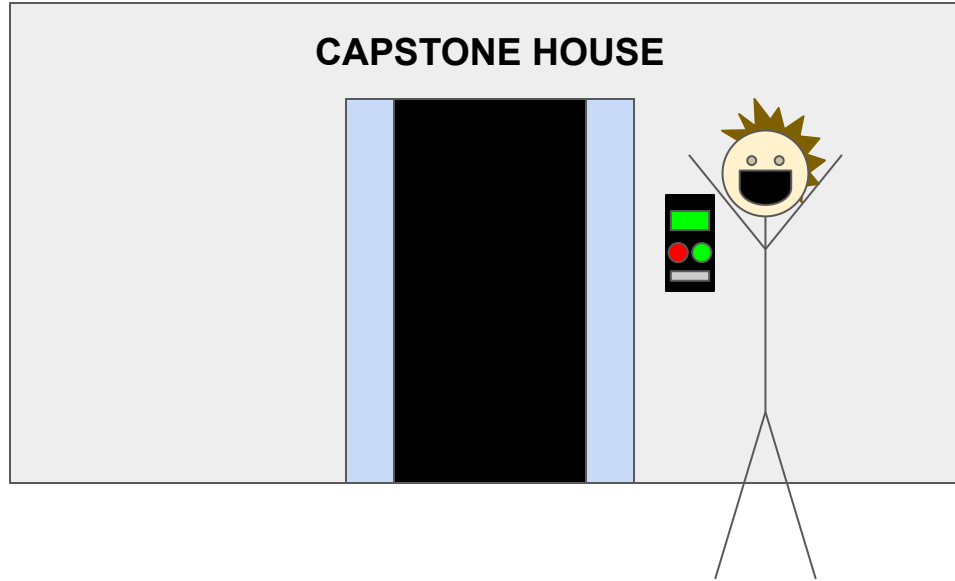

Now at the entrance of Tim's dorm, there is an iris scanner that quickly scans the eye.

The iris scanner detects the person's identity and grants them access if they are a student or staff member.

Tim just finished his long day of school, and realizes he forgot his keycard...again!

However, the new security features don't require a keycard. Tim scans his eyes and the door unlocks. Now Tim doesn't have to wait for someone else to open the door!